GATHERED UP.

A mortgage on the house will not prevent the roof from leaking.

The man who sets out in life's race expecting to have a walk-over is likely to be run over before he has proceeded far upon his way.

Don't forget that there are swindlers in every line. Beware of the man who offers a cheap gold mine.

"What is the matter with your wife?" "She's not her hand in a sling."

"Reckless driving."

"Horse?"

"No; rail."

Mr. Talkat—all men are born equal, Uncle Eph, but the trouble is they don't stay that way.

Uncle Eph—Da's right, sah; da's right. Some of you sons gits ter be a pow'ful sight equaler than de odgers.

The appropriations in Brookline this year aggregate $4,726,639.49 which is certainly a tidy sum. There is wealth in Brookline.

She—He was desperately in love with her. Why, he sent her costly flowers and presents nearly every day for two years.

He—Did he finally win her?

She—No; he earned her.

"You say Jones is down and out?"

Why, it was only a little while ago that he told me he had the key of success."

"He did, but the poor fellow wasn't able to find the keyhole."—Exchange.

Cook (angrily)—See here, you little imp, did you take that cake off the shelf?

Small Boy (son of an attorney)—I decline to answer any questions until I have conferred with my lawyer.

"Why are you constantly referring to Bliggins as a leading citizen?"

"I can't help having an admiration for the man," replied Miss Capone. "He belongs to our whist club and always knows which card to play first."—Washington Star.

About half the world is busy attending to the business of the other half, and apparently enjoying it and the hot-water their curiosity leads them into. For curiosity, but very deservingly, those who will interfere gratuitously or by invitation usually end in finding themselves disliked by those whom they thought to help.

Great heights give wide visions to open eyes. It is only when the spirit of God leads men to these exalted experiences where he knows and feels that God is, that the very ground about him becomes holy ground and the horizon is pushed back so that he can behold the infinite glory beyond.

A census enumerator was questioning a woman of indubitable Celtic extraction and had come to the division of sexes.

"How many males have you in your family?" he asked.

"Three a day, sorr, an' I gitt 'em meself!" she replied emphatically.

A JOY FOR THE DOCTOR.

Among the patients in a certain hospital there was recently one disposed to take a dark view of his chances for recovery.

"Cheer up, old man!" admonished the youthful medical attendant to the ward wherein the patient lay. "Your symptoms are identical with those of my own case four years ago."

"I was just as sick as you are. Look at me now!"

"The patient ran his eyes over the physician's stalwart frame. "What doctor did you have?" he finally asked feebly.

EDITH HAD OVERHEARD.

One Philadelphia newspaper man has a little daughter with whom he sometimes finds it necessary to be a trifle severe. Particularly is this true when the hour for going to bed comes around each night.

Last night the clock struck 8 and the father watched his three-year-old play on in a conscious effort to appear unconcerned.

"Edith, do you know it is your bedtime?" he asked.

Edith dropped the playthings and walked over to her father with very sober mien.

"If this thing is to continue night after night I suppose I'll have to submit to it," she said.

The newspaper man waited until his offspring had climbed the stairs to be tucked away by her mother, and when the latter returned to the room where he was sitting he said:

"Let's have our little spats in private hereafter."

His wife agreed.—Philadelphia Times.

A "Hoodoo" Buddha.

Lady Dorothy Nevill in her "Reminiscences" records an example of the so-called "magical influence" of an intimate object upon the fortunes of its possessors similar to that said to have been exerted by the Hope diamond, now in the possession of the Maharajah of Burma.

From the day a statuette of Buddha from Burma of charming workmanship entered her house everything went amiss. Its installation in the drawing room was followed by a perfect avalanche of catastrophes.

Within a week a son failed in business. Household pets came to tragic ends. A favorite pony was suddenly paralyzed, and this on the very eve of an election in which it was to assist by conveying Conservative voters to the poll, from which it is inferred that the Buddha was not favorable to the Tory party.

A few days later a neighboring chimney crashed down upon a wing of Lady Dorothy's house, doing much damage. Shortly afterward the Buddha was sent for sale to the Indian museum, where, after some minor disturbances, it settled quietly down and has since remained.

ON THE FARM

This column is worth more than $2.00 a year to you. Subscribe for the Gazette.

April is a good month to hatch geese. It is also an excellent time for getting out ducklings. Stock hatched now will be best for next year's breeding.

Don't neglect egg testing. One rank egg in a machine can spoil a whole hundred, and the time lost knocks your early laying pullets.

If the feed gets short before the pasture is ready, it is better to buy more.

There is no economy in cutting down the feed at the freshening period.

Now, don't wait till the last moment before ordering the berry plants. Give the folks who grow them a chance to bid the order in good shape without being hurried. Better for them and surely better for you.

Wheat furnishes more material for eggs than corn. A bushel of wheat contains about one-tenth more protein than corn, but about one-half less fat. So to fatten fowls feed corn and for eggs feed wheat.

When you want to do a good job of hoeing or weed cutting this spring, put an edge upon the hoe. How much better the tool will work, and the operator as well. We despise a dull hoe, and do not own one.

A sour manger is the abomination of a really good horse. The man who forces a horse to eat from such a manger is sure to be the loser, and will sometimes lose the horse with intestinal disorders, including colic.

If sexes are equal geese pair. The laying season usually opens in February. Young geese make better breeders than do young geese. As a rule geese are free from disease. Old geese are more reliable and lay more eggs than do young geese. Geese live longer than any of our domestic poultry.

As soon as the leaves start on currant or gooseberry bushes, cut out all sickly-looking or non-starting canes and promptly burn the cuttings. Borers are probably within, and in this way they can be kept in check.

When the leaves begin to grow, the canker-worm may commence to move up on the trunks of fruit and other trees. Banks of tar or printers' ink, if put on the tree trunks in time, will catch many of the pests.

All too often a breechy, runaway team and an ancient, fogged-up harness belong to the same man. Either one alone is bad enough, but together they are calculated to make a fellow lose what little religion he may have cultivated.

An adobe-dried tool costs $19.41 (whole-sale rates) worth of injurious worms and insects every season. It is a most efficient ultimate consumer, and it likes just those things which the farmer likes best. It is home-loving and very fond of children—its own children. No farmer or suburbanite should try to get along without a couple of good tools.

The question of why living is more expensive than it used to be should not be hard to answer. The producing class formerly numbered 10 per cent of the whole population, now it is reduced to 10. The present tendency of the people to flock toward the cities has reduced the producing class and added to the consuming class, and the increased yield per acre because of improved methods of farming has not kept up the supply in proportion to the increase in demand.

"Why every garden has not an asparagus bed is an unfathomable mystery to me," says Kate V. Saint-Maur in Woman's Home Companion for April. "It is universally liked; every garden contains it a dollar. It is ready for table use in very early spring, when every one craves fresh vegetables, and it is as easy to grow as any other vegetable after it is once established."

A story is told of two New England boys who started farming twenty years ago in the same neighborhood. They were schoolmates. Jim had $12,000 from an uncle to start with. John had nothing, so he worked out to get money to buy stock and implements. Today Jim has nothing and John has Jim's $12,000, or the farm and improvements to represent it. Money is changing hands in a young man, and he has what to do with it.—Agri-cultural Epitome.

Browning.

Browning kept Lord Coleridge one of his works to read, and afterward, meeting the poet, the lord chief justice said to him: "What I could understand I heartily admired, and parts ought to be immortal. But as to much of it I really could not tell whether I admired it or not, because for the life of me I could not understand it."

Browning replied, "If a reader of your caliber understands 10 per cent of what I write I think I ought to be content."

Exchange of Courtesies.

One of the keenest of journalists and wits, Moritz Gottlieb Saphir, had the better of the late stranger against whom he ran by accident at the corner of a street in Munich. "Beast!" cried the offended person without waiting for an apology. "Thank you," said the journalist, "and mine is Saphir."

The Thorns.

Caller—How pleased you must be to find that your new cook is a stayer!

Hostess—My dear, don't mention it. She's a stayer, all right, but unfortunately she's not a cook.—Boston Transcript.

Cruel.

Jess—He said my face was a poem. Jess—It is like one of Browning's. Jess—How do you mean? Jess—Some of the lines are so deep.—Cleveland Leader.

—What Might Be Done.

What might be done if men were wise, What might be done if men were wise, And cease their scorn of one another?

Oppression's heart might be unkind With kindling words of loving kindness And knowledge pour From store to store.

Light on the mortal blindness, All slavery, warfare, lies and wrongs, To each man born, And free as warm in summer weather.

The meanness which eat every soul, The deepest snarl in guilt and sorrow, In self respect, And share the teeming world tomorrow.

What might be done? This might be done, More than this, my suffering brother, More than the tongue, Ever said or sung— If men were wise and loved each other.

—Charles Mackay.

—Mrs. Newman Page of Bridgeport, Conn., made an Easter visit with local friends last week.

—Mr. and Mrs. James Ford attended the wedding of their niece, Miss Louise Ford, at the Congregational church, Hyde Park, Monday evening.

—Mrs. G. M. Hoyt and her daughter Marion have returned from a week's visit at their early home in Vermont, where she renewed her acquaintance with the sugar camps.

—The last meeting of the season of the Weymouth club connected with the Congregational church, was held Monday night. The special guest and speaker of the evening was Stanton H. King, superintendent of the Sallor's Haven at Charleston.

—A reception was held in the parlors from 6 to 8 and then came the supper in charge of Mrs. H. G. Abbott, L. Spence, Frederick H. Langhorne, Elmer E. Leonard and Rev. H. Pratt.

—Rev. G. H. Serivener invoked blessing and gave the benediction and guests proceeded to discuss the time menu, which was well served.

—Rev. E. L. Bradford, originator of the club, and other exercises with slight allusions to the past and a statement that this was probably the last meeting at which he would preside and a hope that the club would resume its work in the fall and conclude his remarks by introducing Mr. King as the speaker of the hour.

—Mr. King is a son of a well-known family in Weymouth and has been a sailor's life when a lad of ten years and spent many years in the Merchant Marine service and in the United States Navy, and his theme was, "My Life Work as a Sailor and Among Sailors" and it goes without saying that Mr. King is one of the best entertainers of the season.

—Benoni Gurney died.

—After a long illness, Benoni Gurney passed away at the home of his daughter Mrs. Henry Roberts, 58 Shawmut street, Weymouth, last week, aged 57 years, 4 months and 14 days.

—Mr. Gurney was a son of Benoni and Mary (Magoon) Gurney and was born in Weymouth, his early life was spent in the place in that part of Abington which is now Rockland, but for many years he has been a resident of Weymouth.

—Mr. Gurney is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Henry Roberts, with whom his late wife lived, and by his son, William Gurney, of Abington, and Charles S. Gurney, of St. John, N. B., three sons and one daughter, Mrs. Annie Prouty, Green Harbor, and Mrs. Edna N. Tenney of Weymouth Heights, also a brother, R. S. Gurney of Haverhill, and in addition, six grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

—Deceased was a veteran of the Civil War and saw active service in the 24th Light Artillery of Boston.

—Funeral services were held at his late home on Shawmut street and were largely attended by friends and relatives.

—A delegation from Haverhill, Mass., came to Weymouth to attend the funeral.

—Many floral tributes testified to the esteem of relatives and friends.

—What Might Be Done.

What might be done if men were wise, What might be done if men were wise, And cease their scorn of one another?

Oppression's heart might be unkind With kindling words of loving kindness And knowledge pour From store to store.

Light on the mortal blindness, All slavery, warfare, lies and wrongs, To each man born, And free as warm in summer weather.

The meanness which eat every soul, The deepest snarl in guilt and sorrow, In self respect, And share the teeming world tomorrow.

What might be done? This might be done, More than this, my suffering brother, More than the tongue, Ever said or sung— If men were wise and loved each other.

—Charles Mackay.

GATHERED UP.

Dilettantes are things that show what men are—Epitaphs.

Mother of her son—He has a beautiful voice, and we have had him taught the lute so that he can accompany himself.—Bon Vivant.

Self-laudation abounds among the unpolished, but nothing can stamp a man more sharply as ill bred.—Buxton.

"A pessimist," said a philosopher, "is one who, even when he has the choice of two evils, chooses both and hangs about waiting for more."

A professional rat catcher in New York has written Mayor Gaynor asking to be released from his duty because it would interfere with his business.

Young Sportsman—Is it worth my time to fish in this neighborhood?

Native—Well, the fishing ain't worth nothing to speak of; but, then, I don't know what your time might be worth.—Comic Cuts.

Police Salesman—Here is something I would like to call your attention to, madam. It's the latest thing out.

Mrs. Rimmer (calmly)—If there's anything out later than my husband I'll take it if only for a curiosity.

A Missouri editor refuses to publish ordinary notices of people who while living failed to subscribe for his paper, and gives this pointed reason: People who do not take their local paper are already dead and their passing away has no news value.

He—"So your husband has given up smoking? It requires a pretty strong will to do that."

She—"Well, I'd have you understand that I have a strong will."—New Zealand Free Lance.

Sell—Harry has had a most useful way about his proposing that I liked.

Belle—Did you? That's queer, for it was exactly what made most of my other girls turn him down.—Baltimore American.

Set about any task lamplily, half heartedly, and failure is inevitable. When General Grant, determined that the course he was about to pursue was the proper one, and said, "I shall fight it out along these lines if it takes all summer," his battles were half won.

"I hope and pray," remarked a gentleman as he left the steamer, "that I shall never have occasion to cross the Atlantic again."

"Rough passage, eh?" queried a friend.

"Rough is no name for it. I had four kings beat three times."—New York Sun.

MANIFESTED THE MAKINGS
Albion Smith's baby was being christened, and everybody present was complimenting the happy parents.

"I believe," said the proud mother, "that he is going to be a great politician some day."

"Why?" asked the kindly-faced father.

"Well, because he crawls out of everything so easily," said the wife, smiling up into her husband's face. —Lippincott.

THE MATTER EXPLAINED
"Why do they say the short as a steel trap?" asked the talkative border.

"I never could see anything particularly intellectual about a steel trap."

"A steel trap is called smart," explained the elderly person in his sweetest voice, "because it knows the right time to shut up."

More might have been said but in the circumstances it would have seemed nit-picking.—London Tit-Bits.

THE WANDERER
I upon a mountain height, far from the sea,
And in my listening ear this lovely thing
Ever a song of ocean seemed to tell.

How came the shell upon the mountain height?

Al, who can say.
Whether there dropped by some two careless hand.

Whether there came when ocean swept the land.

Ever the eternal had ordained the day?
Strange, was it not? Far from its native deep.

One song it sang:
Song of the awful mysteries of the tide,
Song of the restless sea, profound and wide.

Ever with echoes of the ocean rang.
And as the shell upon the mountain height
Sang of the sea.

So do I ever, leagues on leagues away—
So do I ever, wandering where I may—
Sing, O my home, sing, O my home, of thee? —Eugene Field.

Tragic Joking
Oswald's friends were always on the lookout for some ruse. He once notified them that on New Year's day he should get the best of them all in some joke, and New Year's morning each received this notice, "Oswald," they were on their guard.

As they were leaving a house continues, and if there should be a run for these goods, either the supply will be exhausted or to become monotonous and cause a turning of other styles later in the summer.

Some manufacturers see a growing business in cloth topped goods as the present lines seem to be growing popular and are believed to have lasting qualities.

The price situation has not changed entirely. The increase of new business shows that some wholesalers are willing to operate in order to be covered for the future. On the other hand, the fact that some business has been taken at slight concessions causes buyers to claim an uncertain market.—Boston Transcript.

Park Theatre.

The engagement of William Hodge in "The Man from Home" at the Park Theatre is one of the most remarkable in the history of theatricals in this section. Ever since the opening performance four or five weeks ago, capacity business has been the rule and people are turned away nightly.

"The Man from Home" is being its 120th performance and there is no indication of any letup in the attendance. On the night of April 15th, Miss Ida Vernon, who plays the part of Lady Clerk, will celebrate her 54th year on the stage.

Miss Vernon made her debut at the Boston Theatre April 15th, 1856, as one of the Little Blossom Quartet in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

"The Man from Home" is one of those cleverly constructed plays which appeals to all classes, clean, wholesome and invigorating and presented by a cast the equal of which has not been seen on a Boston stage for years.

"The Man from Home" will not be seen in any other city in New England. The Park Theatre management announce that they make a specialty in giving no orders careful attention. An extra matinee will be given on Patriots Day, Tuesday, April 19th.

Those intending paying "The Man from Home" a visit before it leaves the Park Theatre, Boston, would do well to avail themselves of the opportunity to secure choice seats by mail.

Nature Study.

Mrs. Oliver Ames, Sr., is to finance a course in nature study for Eastern teachers, the course to run through the spring term and to consist largely of out-of-door work.

Miss Sarah E. Brail, supervisor of nature study in the schools of Cambridge until the office was abolished and lecturer at teachers' institutes, is to be the teacher. The class will meet for the first time Thursday, April 7, at 1 p. m. at the Oliver Ames High School. After a conference of half an hour the class will take its first field trip.

The meetings with Miss Brail will be considered teachers' meetings.

Charles Ames, chairman of the school board, is interested in the work and has offered the class the use of his large botanical library.

Easton Bulletin.

How To Start a Day Nursery.

"I have in mind a day nursery, started by a few women in a small town of not more than six thousand people in New England," says Hargot Holt, they in Woman's Home Companion for April.

"The idea grew out of a condition—that is, a dearth of household help. There were several women who were anxious to go out to work, but they did not care to leave the baby. To take the baby along was not practicable, so a day nursery idea was born, and with one accord half a dozen women decided to organize a day nursery association, to start it on a small scale and help it grow. A room was opened with a caretaker in charge and an attendance of three babies on the first day. Then two weeks later, when an Italian laborer lost his wife and left with four little children to care for, his joy and relief to find that he could have them taken care of during the day while he worked, and have them at home with him after his day's work, sounded the keynote of success of that particular day nursery, for every sympathizing motherly woman in the town immediately felt a personal interest in the children and a determination to assist the unfortunate man."

The monthly sum of five cents a day for each child was the sum required, so that the stigma of charity did not rest upon the one the nursery was designed to benefit."

Shoe Industry.

With the passing of Easter week, the new season in the shoe market may be considered properly opened and it is evident that it opened in every encouraging fashion, for retailers everywhere had good business and the resultant effect on wholesalers' stocks is equally satisfactory.

Want is more important to the shoe and leather trades is the encouraging way the new season of making and taking shoes has been opened. Salesmen have been out but a short time and have not always left their best markets, but business in the South and West, especially, has opened well, good orders being sent to the manufacturers. The orders for men's bluchers and other styles of heavy shoes have been running from a few weeks since. They have come from salesmen and from wholesalers unsolicited, so the prospect for shoe-work is improved. Mail inquiries and orders daily received by manufacturers indicate a successful season, and the demands for spot goods is healthy. Orders for good grade calf are fair. Slipper makers are doing but little. Some goodsized orders for high grade shoes have been received. Women's staple lines are getting more attention though there is plenty of room for improvement. The interest in better grades is growing.

The demand for furs for both men and women continues to impress by its vigor, and already some anxiety has been expressed as to the ability to meet the demand as the season grows. The call for foxfurs for men's wear continues, and if there should be a run for these goods, either the supply will be exhausted or to become monotonous and cause a turning of other styles later in the summer.

Some manufacturers see a growing business in cloth topped goods as the present lines seem to be growing popular and are believed to have lasting qualities.

The price situation has not changed entirely. The increase of new business shows that some wholesalers are willing to operate in order to be covered for the future. On the other hand, the fact that some business has been taken at slight concessions causes buyers to claim an uncertain market.—Boston Transcript.

GATHERED UP.

Life is not so short but that there is always time for courtesy.—Emerson.

Ribbent is the first and last argument of fools.—Stimmons.

"Talk," said Uncle Eben, "is a capital like rain. A certain amount is welcome and necessary. But doggone a deluge!"

The moral is plain as all may see. If we would esteem for wisdom be. And be most renowned of men among. We must early learn to hold the tongue.

While we are determined to be fair to every one, it strikes us that it needs a colossal wall in a person or organization who patronizes another printer for all their job work and depends on the head paper for free advertising.

"What started him on the road to success?" "Well, I'm not sure; but I think his parents had something to do with it in bringing him up from babyhood in the idea that he was one of the marvels of the age."

Ascend—I see there's some talk upon the question of abolishing capital punishment. Would you vote to abolish it?

Logic—No, sir; capital punishment was good enough for my ancestors and its good enough for me.—Presbyterian Standard.

Let children understand that disobedience is sure to be followed by punishment. A child seldom displays nature more than once in touching a hot lamp glass. It will soon learn to obey you as well. Never allow it to ask why. You know that is enough.

Chicago's city has declared the long hat pin, so much used by the women in attaching their hats to their heads, is in the class with deadly weapons, and it is likely to cost any woman using one a fine of $50.

Prince Bismarck was once pressed by a certain American official to recommend his son for a diplomatic post. "He is a very good fellow," said the prince, "but I don't like his seven languages." "Indeed?" said Bismarck, who did not hold a very high opinion of linguistic acquirements; "what a wonderful head water he would make!"

An Irishman refused to pay his doctor bill, and when asked his reason for it he said: "And sure, what shall I pay for? He didn't give me anything but cornies, and never a one could I get on my stomach at all, at all."

"So you believe in marrying for love?" asked the maid.

"Yes, to a certain extent," replied the fair widow, "but marrying for love with a side issue of bread and butter is like sipping the froth from a glass of soft water."—Chicago News.

The tower will fade and the grass will wither, but we may not make very much of storing the withered stock and the faded petal in the old scrapbooks of our lives. How many a man has become old and sour and useless holding on to the things which he should let go. The only salvation in a moving world is to keep moving with the world, and to keep pace with the divine spirit that every morning makes all things new.

Non-sensical time is here and well may we ramble as follows:

Oh, dear to our hearts are the sad days of springtime, when the annual house-cleaning recurs to our view, when we sleep on the sofa and eat off the mantle in an atmosphere strongly suggestive of glue; we think of the stove pipe, the soot that came with it and sweet expressions so fluent and fine, but the saddest and most bitter of all recollections, is the dusty old carpet that long on the floor, oh, that dusty old carpet, that rusty old carpet, that musty old carpet that hung on the line.—Marshall News.

The Wheel Problem.

Which, at any given moment, is moving forward faster—the top of a coach wheel or the bottom?

The answer to this question seems simple enough, but probably nine persons out of ten, asked at random, would give the wrong reply. It would appear at first sight that the top and bottom must be moving at the same rate—that is, the speed of the carriage. But by a little thought it will be discovered that the bottom of the wheel is, in fact, by the direction of its motion around its axis, moving backward. In an opposite direction to that which the carriage is advancing and is consequently stationary in space, while the point on top of the wheel is moving forward with the double velocity of its own motion around the axis and the speed at which the carriage moves.

The Whistle Tankard.

A rare form of drinking vessel is in the possession of the corporation of Hull. This is a whistle tankard which belonged to Anthony Lambert, mayor of Hull in 1559. This fine specimen of old English silverware is fitted with a whistle, which comes into play when the tankard is empty and is evidently meant to be used as a signal for more liquor. It is said that only one other whistle tankard is to be found in England, so temperate is England now!—London Chronicle.

A Good Alarm Clock.

Bedstead—Why don't you have the cook shut the kitchen door? One can smell the breakfast cooking all over the house. Wife—We leave it open on purpose. The smell is all that gets the family up.—Judge.

No Terminal Facilities.

"Impossible! Could an angleworm have water on the knee?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

ON THE FARM

When you hurry about milking, the cow feels uncomfortable and shortens up on you a little. That hurts you and hurts the cow as well.

Everybody is impatient to begin the spring work, but it were wise to temper impatience with good judgment and to wait until all the conditions are right.

There is a great shortage in the hog crop throughout the whole country, and it can only be replaced by keeping the best brood sows and raising more pigs.

Just as nearly as you can, grow all the stuff you will need for your family and your stock right at home this year. One thing that keeps a good many men poor is buying what they ought to raise themselves.

A sitting hen knows a thing or two, so do not disturb her when hatching any more than necessary. Do not move her and chicks from the nest until the chicks have gained some strength.

"I want a few colored illustrations of hoes and tomatoes."

"Life size?" inquired the artist.

"Catalogue size," replied the seedman, with a significant smile.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Especially in early hatches, care should be taken not to set a hen until she is thoroughly broody. It does not take much experience to know when a hen is really broody. She will be very fussy when approached and hug close to the nest when the hand is placed under her.

A good cow is young. She should not be more than 1 or 2 years when you buy her. The next four years will be her best. You want her during that time. The good cow will have a good, big bag and fat, well-distributed ribs. You can't get milk without some place for storing it. Then for the milk vein up and see if it is large, entering the body through a good-sized aperture.

A good water font is easily prepared for little chicks by filling a shallow pan with pebbles not quite as large as walnuts. Then fill with water. The chicks can drink between the pebbles and not get water on their heads. It is too much trouble for you to keep pure, fresh drinking water before the chicks constantly, also, the older fowls, better let chicken raising alone, for it is no occupation for a busy person.—Fannie M. Wood.

No animal on the farm is better adapted to turning good food quickly into milkable milk than the cow, and none can be so easy on a market standpoint, a discriminating system of feeding. This is particularly true as to first costs. The cow is by nature planned to utilize the less expensive feeds and will manufacture into milk some of the poorest material that otherwise she would reject. If not waste.

Just according to the system of care and management given the dairy herd will depend the profit or loss. Dealing with the herd as a herd is a mistake; each cow should be judged as an individual, and on her own merits. It should not only be known the quantity of milk each cow gives but also the amount of butter fat she yields. It does not mean necessarily that because a cow gives 4 per cent of butter fat, she is more profitable than one giving milk testing at 3 per cent.

It has been found by experiments at one of the New York stations that the soil mixture best adapted for forcing brood hens is of rather compact texture and contains a good portion of fine sand, clay and silt, moderately lightened with fairly well-rotted manure. It was also found that after a heavy application of stable manure any further addition of chemical fertilizers is only thrown away. Chemical fertilizers gave best results on sandy soils, fairly well-rotted stable manure on clay soils.

The poultry house should be located upon the best drained soil available on the farm. The sanest soil that will still grow crops is desired for poultry. If the poultry house be located on pure sand there will be no green crop or insect life for the fowls to furnish feed and amusement, and then results will be little better than bare board floors.

While there are some apple growers who spray their trees once before the buds open in the spring, there are more who apply the spray mixture first, as the petals of the blossoms are falling, and if an application is to be made this is definitely the best time to make it. The earlier spraying is for fungus diseases, while the one made just as the blossoms are falling is for both fungus diseases and insects.

Potatoes.—A rich, sandy loam is the most favorable soil. It should be thoroughly loosened so that the tubers may grow freely. Plant as soon as the frosts cease, about 2 inches deep, 12 to 18 inches apart, in rows 3 feet apart. The tubers are cut for planting so as to leave one or two eyes to each piece. Level cultivation is preferred. The weeds must be kept down, and when the potatoes appear they must be killed promptly by a free use of Paris green or by brushing off by hand. A second planting, covered deeper, about May day will give potatoes for use in August, and a still later planting will furnish the fall crop. In digging and storing, potatoes should not be much exposed to light. A peck of potatoes will plant 200 feet of row.

Mr. Pratt, who runs a wood-sawing machine, was sawing wood at Jacob Wittelman's on Main street. His brother Wilmann was assisting him and had passed him one stick and had turned around to get another stick; the first stick of wood got caught and the saw, which burst in two catching Mr. Pratt in the abdomen lengthways. Wallace Hiley and George Stockwell with the assistance of a team were able to carry Mr. Pratt to his home on Pine street, where Mrs. Treliff and Mayberry soon arrived. He is now rapidly improving.

CHAPTER II.

"AFTER leaving Notre Dame," Paul continued, "I went to the prefecture of police, but halfway across the square he glanced back at the church clock which shows his white face above the golden angles and pointing his head a moment in deep thought.

"A quarter to seven," he muttered, turning to the right, he walked quickly to a little shop with flowers in the windows, the Tavern of the Three Wise Men.

"Ah, I thought so," he muttered as he recognized his friend and assistant, Paul, at the door of the tavern, the old man, who had a red face and a purple throat, he said in a low tone, "I want you."

Tigned looked up quickly from his glass, and his face lighted. "Ah, M. Paul again!"

"I must see M. Pongou," continued the detective. "It's important. Go to his office. If he isn't there go to his house. Anyhow, find him and tell him to come to meet me. Hurry on. I'll pay for you. And run down the church and tell Pongou that he must come either."

"I knew it! I knew it!" chuckled Paul. "I know it! I know it! There's nothing doing here."

With this much arranged, Pongou, after paying for his friend's ale, strode over to a cab stand near the statue of Henry IV, and selected a horse that could possibly make more than four miles an hour.

Behind this deliberate animal he seated himself, and giving the driver his address, he charged him gravely not to go fast and settled back against the cushions to comfortable meditations. "There is no better way to think out a tough problem," he used to say. "I'm sure that a very long drive in a very slow cab."

It may have been that this horse was not slow enough, for forty minutes later Pongou's brown was still at the Villa Montmorency, really a collection of villas, some dozens of them, in a private park near the Bois de Boulogne.

The detective accepted a wing of the original Montmorency chateau, a habitation of two spacious rooms, more than enough for himself and his mother and the faithful old servant M. de la Roche, who, during the summer months, when Mme. Pongou was away at a country place in the Vosges mountains that her son had bought for her, Paul Couquill had never married, and his friends declared that, besides his wife, he loved only two things in the world—his mother and his dog.

At 8 o'clock the detective rose from the dinner table and withdrew to his study, a large square opening of the dining room and furnished like no other study in the world. Around the walls were low bookcases with white tops, on which were spread, not books, but Couquill's collection of cases on which he had been engaged, wonderful sets of burglars' suits, weapons, and implements.

The trouble with the average man is that his ideals are higher than his salary.

Does it pay to learn to make life a glory instead of a grind?

"Prosperity has ruined more a man," No doubt, but if I were given any choice in the matter, I'd rather be ruined by prosperity than by adversity. The process is more enjoyable."—Chicago Post.

Does it pay to know how to take the dry, dreary drudgery out of life?

"They say she will create no end of go-slow." I guess the jobbers in that community will be able to handle her output."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Does it pay to push one's horizon farther out in order to get a wider outlook—a clearer vision?

It is all right to weave a halo about the past, but if it is a golden age, but if my inclination to idealize the past is going to make me blind to the fine things of the present, then this inclination is all wrong.

Does it pay to learn how to focus thought with power, how to marshal one's mental force effectively?

"Now, children," asked the teacher, "what is the use of a calendar?" "It tells where you'd better get your life insured!"—Cleveland Leader.

Does it pay to acquire power to get out of life high and noble pleasures which wealth can not purchase?

The little chances flinger and return, but the great chances come and go and never come back again. If you could look back over the lives of the people by whom we are surrounded, how many great and rich opportunities would we see that they have permitted to drift by them unimproved?

Does it pay to have one's mentality stirred by the passion for expansion, to feel the tonic of growth, the indescribable satisfaction which comes from the consciousness of perpetual enlargement?

"I should advise every young woman to make a thorough study of literature," said Miss Cayenne, thoughtfully.

"Why?"

"So that when she reads a man's letters she can tell what his sentiments are, how honest and which are original."—Washington Star.

Does it pay to have your years filled with the most delightful associations with cultured people at an age when ambitions and high ideals have not been dulled or shattered by disappointment of the unbounded faith in human nature shocked by violated pledges?—Home Chat.

Girl pupils in the Lynn Classical High school have solved the problem of a simple experience graduation. The plan is to have all girls in the graduating class wear a uniform dress at the exercises. The material will be inexpensive jute and enough will be bought for all the dresses. No lace or trimming will be allowed. As all the girls are unanimous for the uniform, it looks as though the closing days of school would not be marred by thoughts of dress.

WHY HE SOLD FROGS.

On a stand in a certain fish market on Washington Heights squatted a couple of dozen of small frogs, guarded against escape.

"Queer pets, those," suggested a customer.

"They're not pets," said the proprietor. "And they're not here to have their legs sold to fancy eaters, neither."

"What do you keep them for, then?"

"Snakes—pet snakes. Yes, sir; people on the heights keep pet snakes. You'd be surprised if you knew how many of 'em do it. I sell 'em the frogs to feed the snakes—it's the favorite food. Five got several of them customers, and there are other places do the same."

"Queer game, ain't it—snakes for pets? Can't say I'd like it myself. But there's all kinds of people."—From the New York Globe.

ON THE FARM

Trade one of the pups for a pig.

Plant the garden when the cherry blooms.

Remember when you plow in the orchard that the roots are very near the surface. Three inches is plenty deep enough.

To be a successful tractor, have a continuous succession of trees, and maintain and increase the land's productivity year after year.

The root cutter is almost an indispensable machine on the farm. The life of many a valuable cow would have been saved if the apples and potatoes fed had been run through a root cutter.

To soften an old paint brush in which the paint has been allowed to dry, heat some vinegar to the boiling point, and allow the brush to simmer in it a few minutes. Remove and wash well in strong soap suds, and the brush will be like new.

Of all shortsighted initial economies there is none worse than the buying of cheap and inferior fruit trees. Just because they can be got cheap, and this is true whether one is setting an orchard for himself or expects to turn it over to some customer at bearing age.

Another encouraging sign of the change of sentiment toward farming is the interest of business men largely in agricultural matters. The Boston chamber of commerce, through its committee on agriculture, has entered on a work that must do a great deal of good. It recognizes that the farmer is the backbone of the community's prosperity must rest.

Is it not possible, nay, probable—that many of our so-called failures in breeding are due to a lack of knowledge of the art of feeding? It must stand as true that, however well bred our herds may be, they can not prove profitable unless well fed; and we are rapidly coming to the time if we have not already reached it, when good cow feeding will mean individual feeding according to each animal's needs.

Prof. King of the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Station, showed by experiments that certain well-manured lands contained eighteen tons more water per acre in the upper foot of soil than similar land unmanured and thirty-four tons more in the soil to a depth of three feet. He claimed that manure will aid in equalizing the supply and distribution of water in soils and states that manured land is least subject to the demerits of wind and rain.

For several reasons the dairy herds should be freshened young. The habits of milk-producing must be fixed before the making of the udder is completed. The energies of the system must be bent toward producing milk before the habit of building a frame is fully established. With the small breeds, at or about the second year of age, is a good time to have the heifer first freshen. With large breeds it would be better at about 2½ years.

A constant supply of grit is, of course, very necessary right from the first. Without it the chicks can not properly grind and digest their food. Course sand will answer very well for the first five days or a week, but after that some coarser material must be provided. Keep a little charcoal also before the chicks where they can pick at it whenever desired. This may save you a lot of trouble, for charcoal is one of the best bowel correctors there is for chicks of all kinds.—Agricultural Epitome.

Found for pound and at a rough estimate, liquid manure, or, more correctly, animal urine, has somewhere near three times the fertilizing value as has solid manure. Taking this fact into account, it can be clearly seen that those who are desirous of maintaining or increasing the productive capacity of their soil must put forth every effort to prevent any loss of this valuable fertilizer. Even with concrete floors, unless huddling and absorbents are plentifully used, such a loss is sure to occur.

The prevailing, and we might say foolish, custom of most farmers is to plant potatoes just as they come, little and big. Indeed, some use the smaller ones for seed and retain the larger ones for cooking purposes, sometimes placing them on the market.

While such a course will not noticeably affect the potato crop for a single season, its continuation surely but slowly lowers the yield—not so much by an insufficient number of tubers, but by inferiority in size and quality. We believe this to be the chief blunder made by most potato raisers and that it accounts for more failures with this crop than any other one cause.

Cut out all broken or injured roots from the trees to be set, and freshen the ends of the sound roots with a slanting cut from below upward, so that the fresh surface will rest on the soil. When the roots are in their natural position, set the trees in the center of the hole and carefully fill in around the roots with the best of the top soil taken out, sifting it from the edge of the shovel and working it between the roots with the fingers, shaking the tree meanwhile to get the earth in every crevice between the roots. When the roots are fairly covered, tramp firmly then fill in with the poorer of subsoil, tramping it firmly as it is put in place. The tree when set should stand little, if any, deeper than it grew in the nursery row. The firmed earth should be banked in around the tree to shed water.

MONKEYS IN BATTLE.

They Fight Under Leaders and Rules.

Aspen's age, it will be remembered, went on passing through a human graveyard, overcome with sorrow for his dead sons, and that the boys are willing enough to be more like than they are they show by their mimicry.

An old authority tells that the easiest way to capture apes is for the hunter to pretend to slay himself, then to wash his face, fill the basin with a sort of medicine and leave it for the apes to find themselves. If the Chinese story is to be believed the initiative game is even more fatal in another way, for if you shoot one monkey of a band with a poisoned arrow his neighbor, jealous of so unusual a decoration, will snatch the arrow from it and stab itself, only to have it torn away by a third, until in succession the whole troop has committed suicide.

In their wild life monkeys as well as many varieties of the monkey tribe undoubtedly submit to the authority of recognized leaders. There is co-operation between them to the extent that when fighting in company one will go to the help of another which is hard pressed.

In rocky ground they roll down stones upon their enemies, and in the morning they are seen to be engaged in the selection of the most perfect of the proceeds of the day, which are then divided among the members of the band.

It is not long necessary for the man who is a bit particular about shirts to pay custom prices when he can get what he wants in a ready-made garment.

The exact science to which shirt draughting has been brought, the employment of the best designers, and the expert knowledge applied to the selection of dyes, has resulted in a shirt that is not excelled.

The CHURCH label marks it.

Let George Do It!

If we the best in life we have.

But then, of course, this easier.

For us to let George do it.

If we neglect hard things to do.

Some time in life we'll rue it.

But then again we might be glad.

At times to let George do it.

If bread and cake are running low.

And no time to renew it.

Just think what a good plan 'twould be.

To let your friend George do it.

Now George L. Whitcomb would be glad.

If you would let him do it.

For his supplies of bread and cake.

Are best if you let him know it.

CHANCES OF LIFE.

Probability at Your Age of How Long You Will Live.

After we are dead it probably will not concern us whether we died at twenty or fifty or ninety, but just how many of us are interested in the matter, and being average persons in sound health, we can figure out with certainty just what our chances are of reaching any particular age.
